On February 10, 2004, Governor Schwarzenegger created the first ever CPR to help streamline and maximize efficiency in California's state government. The CPR will conduct a rigorous examination of state government and formulate and recommend practical changes to increase efficiency and effectiveness across state government. The CPR Team is beginning their review and is requesting your ideas and suggestions. Attached is a memo from the California Labor and Workforce Development Agency encouraging your participation.

To All Employees:

Last month, Governor Schwarzenegger launched the California Performance Review (CPR) which will be the most comprehensive review of state government in over 30 years. CPR Leadership selected 150 team members representing every government agency and they are beginning their work to transform and reenergize state government into a customer-driven, cost-efficient operation.

Governor Schwarzenegger and the CPR Team recognize that you are what makes state government run on the front lines of our programs and services. The CPR Team wants to hear from you! Many of you have innovative solutions to more efficiently provide improved services to our customers. Please send your ideas via electronic mail at cpr.ca.gov/email/ - cpr so the CPR Team can begin reviewing them as soon as possible.

With your good ideas and the CPR Team's intensive work and review, California will benefit from a 21st Century government that exceeds customer expectations.
